APPLYING FOR DOJ FUNDING TIP SERIES

Submit Your Application in JustGrants

The final step to applying for Department of Justice (DOJ) funding is to submit your completed application in JustGrants. Every funding opportunity has a JustGrants submission deadline, and applicants are encouraged to submit in advance to provide ample time to address potential gaps or errors.

Check for Errors Early and Often

Every funding opportunity describes unique application requirements that then translate to your JustGrants application. Those requirements are generally marked by an asterisk, and users are prompted to address those requirements within each application section (when selecting the "Continue" button on each section). Users can also check for errors in the final section of the application on the "Certify and Submit" page. Learn more about error checks and how to make corrections in the Application Submission: Resolving Validation Errors Quick Reference Guide.

Successful Submission

Once your application has been successfully submitted, a confirmation message will appear at the top of the page, the application status will change to "Submitted," and users will receive an email confirming successful submission.

For more information on submitting an application, refer to the JustGrants Application Submission Training page.
